

Communicating in signs is difficult enough without using unqualified persons to deliver the service. RID or NAD certification should be required before the person is employed as an interpreter.